APPROVING HIGH LICENSE. WHAT THE ROOSEVELT BILL WILL DO. SPEECHES AT YESTERDAY'S TEMPERANCE MEET-

"A discussion of the Roosevelt High License bill" was announced in large letters on the programme of the Manhattan Temperance Association yesterday afternoon. "This is a wonderful meeting!" exclaimed President Gibbs, excitedly, as he vibrated between the choir on the left of the platform and the solid phalanx of ministers on the right. "Talk about your Roosevelt bill," he exclaimed, gazing defiautly at the andience; "Don't you know that we are going to be an independent organization next fall? I tell you we're going to absorb the whole Republican party. The party that's the weakest will seek our balance of power; but don't you yield it until you get an assurance of a prohibition platform. That's all that's meant when the Governor signs the Roosevelt Alderman bill." INGS-WENDELL PHILLIPS.

The first speaker was James H. Laird, of Indiana.

He said:

I give my hearty good-will to the Roosevelt High License bill. It will be a great movement to purge out the corruption of this city. It will secure the sanctity of the Babbath. When a man pays such a sum for a license, he will take care not to forfeit it. It will break up such organizations as the Brewers' Association, which aim to defy free legislation. The men who are so low as to gredge themselves, body and soul, to such dictation as that are the very men who are now handling this filthy business that we are so sick of in the city departments.

Dr. T. S. Lambert, was of a different continue. Dr. T. S. Lambert was of a different opinion. He said:

said:

I don't think it will have any effect. It is not high license. What's $500! The Fifth Avenue Hotel could knock it out in one day if they had a good Republican convention. I stepped into a liquor-shop last week floud applause!—No, no, it was only because! I wanted to find an expressman there. I stopped to talk with the barkeeper. "How's business!" said I. "Quiet," said Ir. "Oh, don't think of it at all," said he, "but shouldn't think the people would like to pay for it." "But it's the saloon-keepers who will have to pay," said I. "Not at all," said he, "If the Legislature raises the license we shall raise the price of drams. As near as I can figure, I should make $500 a year more than I do now, if the bill should pass."

The Rev. G. C. Goss said: The Roosevelt men and the Prohibition men ought to have combined their forces and had prohibition and high ficeuse both. But I'll have prohibition in spite of them. Next November I'll put a vote into the ballot-box with "Prohibition" written on it, and I advise every one of ou to do the same. [Mr. Gibbs—"Good!"]

Robert Kenyon, an East Side street evangelist,

Father McClellan, the aged temperance agitator, was the last speaker. He said: I can say very little about the Roosevelt bill, but I am
it. It is the first line of intrenchments, and we have take that before we can go any further. If we can't complish this, then let us rally our forces and at the emy again.

ecombish this, then let us raily dure the second again!

"There's been fifty dollars' worth of entertainment in this meeting," said Mr. Gibbs, as he came forward to close the exercises; "Ushers, pass the plates, and don't let us have any coppers!"

The Rev. Jastin D. Fulton delivered an address on Wendell Phillips at the meeting of the American Temperance Union in Chickering Hall yesterday afternoon. He said in part:

The Jeremiah of the nineteenth century has closed his accounts and gone hence. He was the grandest orator America ever saw. He was an out-and-out prohibitionist to the ceat. He fought against the evils of the day with all his strength, and had the satisfaction of seeing the greatest of all evils, human slavery, driven from the United States. Wendell Phillips opposed the liquor traffic to the end of his life.

THE GREAT PEDESTAL.

ESTIMATED COST OF THE GRANITE. THE FINANCIAL CONDITION AND OUTLOOK OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The bids for stone for the pedestal of the Bartholdi statue were opened recently, but no contract has been awarded. The amount needed was in round numbers 5,600 cubic yards, of which about 4,000 were for the exterior, including the interior of the loggia or open gallery near the top. The diminsions of the stone required were large, the weight ranging from four tons to sixteen tons and a half. Many bids came in, principally for granife, since no other stone seemed appropriate for a work of such colossal character. The bids ranged widely in price, but for such granite as seemed to the Executive Committee and Ruchard M. Hunt, the architect, of suitable color and quality, the average cost was $50 per cubic yard. This would make a total of $250,000 for the granite alone, supposing the stone for the exterior and interior to be of the same grade and cost. But calculating the cost of the exterior 4,000 cubic yards at $50 per yard, and of the interior stone at $25 per yard this would give a total of $24,000. As the estimated total cost of the pedestal had been $250,000, the Executive Committee were fairly staggered, and have come to no decision. It is obvious that the cost of the pedestal was much underestimated.

The pecuniary position of the Executive Committee is as follows: In round numbers they have received $140,000 and have spent $70,000 for the concrete foundation and for necessary expense. They have in hand about $70,000 and are received.

The pecuniary position of the Executive Committee is as follows: In round numbers they have received $140,000 and have spent $70,000 for the concrete foundation and for necessary expense. They have in hand about $70,000, and are receiving from their solicitors in this city and from various sources about $1,000 per week. Their money weakness is not due to any lack of energy. Whatever has been raised has been raised almost exclusively by them directly or indirectly. They organized more than a year ago committees for the leading States and cities particularly those of the great West, from whose liberality and eager patricularly states and cities particularly those of the great West, from whose liberality and eager patricularly they expected much. Their receipts from that quarter have not amounted to $500. The local committee formed of leading citizens have obvious the money was spent at the National Theatre. Each of the little culprits was held in $1,500 bail for trial. weakness is not due to any lack of energy. Whatever has been raised has been raised almost exclusively by them directly or indirectly. They organized more than a year ago committees for the leading States and cities particularly those of the great West, from whose liberality and eager patrictism they expected much. Theirfreeipts from that quarter have not amounted to $500. The local committee formed of leading citizens have obviously supposed their positions to be honorary, for they have done little or nothing. A capable agent has gone through the Western States, carefully explaining that the statue is the rift of France to the United States, and does not belong to New-York, but has been placed on Bedloe's Island in the harbor of New-York by the Nation. But it seems still to be felt by the people of other States that it does belong to New-York, and that New-York ought to furnish the money. The statue was paid for by the gifts of a quarter of a million of Frenchmen, and the Executive Committee have resolved that the pedestal must be built by gifts as truly national in character.

But $250,000 will not be sufficient. The concrete foundation is now up 32 feet of the total 52 feet, and $70,000 had been disbursed. To complete this part alone, and to place over it the system of concrete arches devised by General Stone will require at the least $30,000 more. The concrete part may be timshed by the middle of May. By that time the receipts of the committee may have swollen to $160,000. They will have to meet the disbursements needed for the stone; and for the laving, the sum of $60,000, which is altogether inadequate. The chances are therefore that there will be a long wait between the acts.

The workmen on the concrete foundation are now above the ramparts of old Fort Wood. The concrete is six feet above the subterranean arched passages, arranged in the form of a cross, that lead from the outer passage way to the central well.

TRYING TO BURN HERSELF TO DEATH.

Lizzie Sheehan, age twenty-five, a lodger at Mrs.

Anna O'Neil's, No. 318 Pearl-st., saturated her hair and clothing with kerosene oil at about 6 o'clock last evening, and going into the yard in the rear of the house, deliberately applied a match. In an instant she was ablaze. Opening the back door she walked slowly through the hall, the flames from her burning hair reaching nearly to the ceiling.
She passed out to the sidewalk and was about to cross the street when a fruit-vender, attracted by the cries of some children, ran up and threw his tarpaulin over her, smothering the flames. She was terribly burned about the head and shoulders.

An ambulance was summoned and she was carried to Bellevne. It is thought that she will not die.
Temporary aberration of mind is considered the cause of the attempt to take her life.

Mrs. O'Neil said to a Tributuse reporter that the young woman had lived in her house about a year,
and so far as she knew was of good character.
Her father is Patrick Sheehan, who, several months ago, shot himself with a pistof, was brought to trial and released on the plea of insanity. She left Mrs.
O'Neil's on March 13 in good health and returned on 8t. Patrick's Day. Since then she has acted strangely, as if recovering from the effects of some drug. Up to February 14 she was a waiter at Gibbs's restaurant, but she has been out of employment since. She told Mrs. O'Neil's children shortly before the accident that she had tried three times yesterday to haug herself.

THE UNION CLUB AND THE LOUBAT CASE. TRYING TO BURN HERSELF TO DEATH.

THE UNION CLUB AND THE LOUBAT CASE.

Mr. Loubat's case against the Union Club for reinstatement as a member will be called for trial at the Special term of the Supreme Court in April.

According to agreement between counsel it will be the first on the calcudar. Subpenus have been issued for the plaintiff's witnesses to the extent of fifty. All the members of the Governing Committee, as it was composed in the spring of 1882, have been served; also August Belmont, W. R. Travers and John H. Hunter, and a number of other members of the club. These subpenas call for the presence of the witnesses in the Supreme Court, Special Term, before Hooper C. Van Vorst, on Abril S. James C. Carter and E. Randolph Robinson desire to have the case postponed until next fall, but Mr. Choate will make every effort to bring it to trial at once. The questian of buying the Dix mansion, adjoining the club house in Twenty-first-st., is claiming its share of attention. A special meeting of the cub has been called for Wednesday evening to decide this matter. THE UNION CLUB AND THE LOUBAT CASE.

the pall-bearers, H. B. Claffin, Moses S. Beach, E. A. Seccomb. Augustus Storrs, J. B. Hutchinson, W. B. Boerum, E. H. Van Ingen, H. W. Wheeler and R. W. Ropes, all of whom are Trustees of the church. After the choir had sung "Asleep in Jesus," Mr. Beecher read scripture lessons and spoke briefly. He referred to the faithful though humble services of Mr. Wald, who had highly honored his lowly office. His succeisar would find an honored place to fill. He had shown much skill and patience in his position as clerk of the Trustees, and had handled millions of dollars with much fidelity and diligence. In the third year of his service not one per cent of the pew rents of the church was uncollected. No business in New-York could show such a record. He was a faithful man, a perfect gentleman, and a Christian, if not outwardly, at least within, and he left an honored name.

The body was borne to Greenwood for burial.

EXPERIMENTS ON THE BRIDGE RAHROAD.

The Bridge Trustees on Saturday made a trial of a car on a truck furnished with radial springs, which are considered more favorable for switching than the usual kind. The trial was only moderately satisfactory. Another test of the Mathesius grip, which was attached to car 14, was made also. The special merit of this is that it takes up the cable and drops it from the car, while in the Paine grip this is done by men stationed at the starting point. The cable being of sieel is harder than the brass dies, which revolve upon an elliptic plate of iron, and there is considerable abrasion of the brass.

A CHILD DIES OF STARVATION.

Coroner Robinson, of Long Island City, in the house of William Marrion, in Ferry-st., Hunter's Point, yesterday found the dead body of a female child about a year old, lying on an old mattrees in a corner of a wretchedly furnished room. Four other children were playing near it. The child belonged to Mrs. Johanna Brannigan, who on March 6 was assaulted by John Quigley and MeGill, both of whom are now serving a term in the State Prison. Marrion, who is an inveterate drunkard, left the house on Saturday night, and Mrs Brannigan yesterday morning. Neither has been seen since and there was nothing to eat in the house. Dr. Barnett said that the child's death was due to starvation, and that it must have died on Saturday. The body was sent to the Morgue, and the Coroner ordered the Overseer of the Poor to take charge of the other children.

The children slept on the floor, and the oldest, a bright looking lad about nine years of age, said they had had nothing to eat since Friday night. A CHILD DIES OF STARVATION.

EVERETT P. WHEELER NOT DEAD.

A statement that Everett P. Wheeler, the well-known lawyer of this city, had died at his country-house, Sag Harbor, L. I., from the effects of a fall, was printed in The Star yesterday. At the house of Mr. Wheeler, Park-ave, and Seventy-first-st., a Thugone reporter learned that Mr. Wheeler was in good health and attending church. The report was due to carelessly confounding Mr. Wheeler with an E. P. Wheeler, of Sag Harbor. A number of people called at the house during the day to ascertain the truth of the report. Mr. Wheeler has no house at Sag Harbor.

She also brought a nice basket for the elephant to feed out of. Before Jumbo had finished the delicacies, he seized the basket and ate it, ribbons and all, in preference to the grapes. The lady seemed disconcerted, and said to me: 'He is rude and ungrateful.' But I said: 'He is quite rational; for he prefers his natural food (twiss) or something like it.' She asked: 'Do you think he likes meat I Shall I bring him a nice leg of mutton I' I said: 'Old birch-brooms.' The lady went away quite crestfallen."

than adults, and they become cross, peevish and uncontrollable Rumors in the blood are liable to manifest themselves in various ways, weakening the system so as to render it unable to stand the attacks of serious disease. The blood should be deansed and the system invigorated by the use of Hood the conditions as Hood's Sarsaparilla deserves. Spring and fall we use one or two bottles of your Sarsaparilla fit our family of four, with most satisfactory results. My little girl of 2's years, a strong, healthy child, but very full-blooded, and a hearty cater, was troubled with sties on her eyes. We tried various remedies, but with no lasting effect. At last I resorted to Hood's Sarsapariils, and from the 1st of May, when I used it first for that purpose, she has not had the locat vestige of a sty. By keeping the blood in a pure condition, the whole system is purified. So, both for economy and comfort, we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. CHARLES BREWSTER, Buffalo, N. Y.
